In Loving Memory
of Lynne Nina Cohen

03/27/1949 - 11/16/2025

Lynne Nina Cohen aged 76 of Austin, Texas, passed away peacefully on November 16, 2025. Born in Charlottesville, Virginia on March 27, 1949, she was known for her kind heart, generous spirit and her commitment to education.

She is survived by her loving husband Brad Harris, and her sister Susan Cohen along with many friends.

Lynne grew up in Virginia and was instilled with value of education by her parents. She got an undergrad degree in education and then a masters in education.

She taught school for a while but decided to become a sales rep for financial reasons. But her heart was in teaching.

So, she decided to go back to teaching and she got a certification in dyslexia training. And after working in a private school for a short time, she found a job where she could start a dyslexia program in a public school. Her life's mission became doing whatever it took to help dyslexic children improve their reading. She was a dyslexia therapist for 18 years and helped many, many children.

But she still found time for people outside of school mentoring young people, spending time with her friends, getting involved in causes that were important to her, and being a loving partner for her husband who was extremely proud of her.

“Lynne was a beloved friend of ours since the 1980's when we first met her in Dallas. We formed a strong bond and cherished her until the day she passed away. Even after she moved away, we remained close. We will always remember her warmth, spirit, and generosity. She will forever hold a special place in our hearts. And, we thank Brad for taking such good care of our dear friend and letting us be a part of her journey to the end. Jeanne Geoffray and Julian Buenger

“ Lynne Cohen

I have an image of Lynne that keeps her memory very clear in my mind. She was sitting at my desk doing schoolwork, in profile, her hair flowing down her shoulders, curly, with light browns and blond highlights. I doubt whether many of her dear friends in Texas have seen her with long hair. She was so beautiful. I snuck my camera into the scene a few minutes later and took a shot that wasn't entirely candid but still surprised her, catching a sweet smile and a lovely moment. I wish I still had that photograph to share. We were together and happy for a time until life intervened and I failed her. I'm so glad she made it to Texas and found such good friends who appreciated her kindness and warm heart. We are all blessed to have known her.
